The micro-operas are tiny works for solo soprano, some with simple accompaniment (in some cases to be played by the singer), others a cappella. These are part of an ongoing series; each opera is under three minutes long, and is an attempt at presenting a complete story in miniature, while using texts derived completely from spam emails. Each opera is a stand-alone work, though they may be performed in combinations as well, or, preferably, interwoven between other, longer works on a program of other vocal works.
